Re: Starbucks Coffee Company

Dear Sir or Madam:

This firm represents Starbucks Corporation d/b/a Starbucks Coffee Company and its subsidiaries (collectively, "Starbucks"). Starbucks has asked us to contact you because Your Smart Rewards is responsible for certain email and Internet promotions for a "FREE" "$250 Starbucks® Gift Card," each of which improperly uses the Starbucks® name, the Starbucks Coffee® mark and Starbucks' famous Siren Logo®. We write to request that you discontinue these actions, which violate Starbucks' copyright, trademark and related rights, and confirm that you will not make similar unconsented use of Starbucks' intellectual property in the future.

As you know, Starbucks owns U.S. trademark registrations and worldwide registrations for STARBUCKS®, STARBUCKS COFFEE® and a number of related marks. Starbucks also owns federal trademark and copyright registrations for its famous "Siren Logo," (collectively, the "Starbucks Marks"). Starbucks has used the Starbucks Marks for more than a quarter of a century as the principal identifiers of its business and the products it sells. The Starbucks Marks have acquired substantial goodwill and are extremely important assets of the company. Through the substantial effort and investment of Starbucks' employees and shareholders, consumers have come to associate the Starbucks Marks with premium quality in both products and services.

Starbucks has learned that Your Smart Rewards is sending - or causing other entities to send - unsolicited emails that violate Starbucks' intellectual property rights. These emails offer "$250 of Starbucks FREE!" and provide a hyperlink to a web page on the <yoursmartrewards.com> Website. The Starbucks® name, the Starbucks Coffee® mark, and the Starbucks Siren Logo® appear in both the emails and on your Website without Starbucks' permission.

EXHIBIT

Starbucks takes issue with a number of aspects of your promotions:

Brewer D

Men's Wearhouse v.
Exclusive Gift Cards

25525406.1

Your Smart Rewards
April 25, 2005

(1) Starbucks objects to the entire promotional scheme, which violates Starbucks' policies regarding joint promotions.<sup>1</sup> Your offer is likely to confuse consumers - and even other companies - by causing them incorrectly to believe that Starbucks and Your Smart Rewards have entered into a joint promotion relationship where none exists, and that Your Smart Rewards is somehow authorized by Starbucks to sell or provide its Starbucks Cards.

(2) Your Smart Rewards' offer is false and misleading. Though the subject heading of the emails, the first page of the emails, and the Website promotion all state that the offered card is "FREE," it is actually conditioned on the provision of personal information and the participation in at least six "sponsored offers." This is especially harmful to Starbucks because Your Smart Rewards is also creating a false impression that Starbucks is associated with the offer, and consumers are thus likely to form the mistaken impression that Starbucks is to blame for misleading them.

(3) Your Smart Rewards makes use of the federally registered trademarks Starbucks® and Starbucks Coffee® in a manner that violates Starbucks' well-established rights in the names with respect to its goods and services. Your Smart Rewards also prominently displays an image of the famous Starbucks Siren Logo® on both the unsolicited emails and in the promotion on the <yoursmartrewards.com> Website, which constitutes copyright infringement.

(4) Your Smart Rewards' promotion refers to "Gift Cards." This is an incorrect term, and one that potentially has significant legal consequences for Starbucks. Gift cards are single-use cards that have a particular status and defined meaning for tax purposes. The Starbucks Cards are not gift cards, because they are reloadable multi-use cards, which have a different status under applicable tax laws.

Starbucks would prefer to resolve this issue without the need to resort to litigation. By this letter, we propose a resolution that will avoid the necessity of formal legal proceedings, while ensuring that there is no further injury to Starbucks' copyright and trademark rights. Thus, we ask that you confirm in writing that:

- Your Smart Rewards and any of its subsidiaries and/or affiliates have ceased all use of the Starbucks Marks and any confusingly similar names, marks or logos;
- Your Smart Rewards has destroyed all brochures, signage, labels, flyers, posters, menus, advertisements, emails or other materials which offer Starbucks Cards or include any variation of any of Starbucks' trademarks;

<sup>1</sup> Starbucks has taken pains to ensure that its Starbucks Cards do not become associated with third-party promotions directed to the general public. If you wish to know Starbucks' policies with respect to the distribution of Starbucks Cards, you may call (800) 611-1699, send an email to b2bgroup@starbucks.com, or visit the web page starbucks.com/businessgifts.

- Your Smart Rewards has removed depictions of the Starbucks Cards and the Starbucks Marks from all locations, banner ads, promotions, advertisements, emails and Websites that Your Smart Rewards owns, controls or with which it is affiliated;

- Your Smart Rewards will not, in the future, use depictions of the Starbucks Cards, the Starbucks Marks or any variations thereof.

For your convenience, we have enclosed an Undertaking that you may simply sign, date and return to us confirming your actions in this matter. Please return the executed Undertaking, by mail or fax, within ten (10) days of the date of this letter. If you have not responded by that time, Starbucks shall take whatever steps that are necessary to preserve and protect its rights.

I look forward to hearing from you and hope that we may resolve this matter amicably. In the interim, however, nothing contained in this letter is intended or should be construed as an admission or waiver of any rights or remedies that Starbucks may have, all of which are hereby expressly reserved.

RE: Cease and Desist Letter re Starbucks

Mr. Rawls,

We are in receipt of your letter dated April 25, 2005 regarding our alleged use of the Starbucks name in YourSmartRewards.com promotions.

Background

The promotions we run offer gifts to consumers who provide survey information and sign up for trial offers from our client sponsors. One of the gifts we recently offered, along with comparative gifts from Dunkin Donuts, was $250 worth of Starbucks' products through distribution of the monetary equivalent or actual gift cards if available from Starbucks and the other retailers.

All offers distributed by YourSmartRewards.com contain the following disclaimer to ensure no consumer confusion regarding the promotions and to comply with the CAN-SPAM Act and other regulations:

*This promotion is sponsored exclusively by YourSmartRewards.com and is subject to participation terms and conditions. Receipt of the membership incentive gift requires completion of offer terms, including: age and residency requirements, registration with a valid email address, completion of user survey, sponsor promotions and shipping address verification. Upon completion of all requirements, we will promptly ship your member incentive gift to your verified shipping address. You may review the status of your account via the member account area at any time. Participation eligibility is restricted to US resident, 18 and over. The trademark owners above have not endorsed this promotion, nor are they affiliated or connected with this promotion in any way. This is a limited time promotion and may expire in the near future. Restrictions may apply. If you no longer wish to receive YourSmartRewards.com emails, visit the unsubscribe page on the YourSmartRewards.com site or visit the url: <http://www.superrewards.com/suppress.htm>. Or, print a copy of this email and send it along with your letter to: YourSmartRewards.com, 123 N. Congress Avenue, #351, Boynton Beach, FL 33426.

Nominative Use

Your YourSmartRewards.com's use of the Starbucks name to describe the gift awarded is in fact "nominative use" under trademark law.

As per several court rulings, including that of most recent circuit court holding for nominative use in Playboy Enterprises v. Welles (2002), the Ninth Circuit held that the test for nominative use is as follows:

"First, the product or service in question must be one not readily identifiable without use of the trademark; second, only so much of the mark or marks may be used as is reasonably necessary to identify the product or service; and third, the user must do nothing that would, in conjunction with the mark, suggest sponsorship or endorsement by the trademark holder. . . . We noted in New Kids that a nominative use may also be a commercial one."

EXHIBIT

Brewer E

Men's Wearhouse v.
Exclusive Gift Cards

In this case, YourSmartRewards.com is completely unable to describe the gift – money or other negotiable instrument to be used at Starbucks locations -- without mentioning the Starbucks name. Secondly, only minimal use of the name is used in describing the gift and finally, as in Welles, there is a clear disclaimer stating that Starbucks does not endorse the promotion and who, in fact, is responsible for it. Welles also made clear that dilution does not apply in nominative use cases.

Comparative Use

Additionally, YourSmartRewards.com may use the Starbucks name in comparative advertising under “fair use” to identify an item to be used at Starbucks in accordance with Sec. 1125(c)(4)(a) of the Trademark Act which states that “The following shall not be actionable under this section: (A) Fair use of a famous mark by another person in comparative commercial advertising or promotion to identify the competing goods or services of the owner of the famous mark.”

In this case, our promotion compared Starbucks and Dunkin Donuts coffee.

Conclusion

While we respect Starbucks’s concern and attention to monitoring of its trademarks, we believe that our uses are well within the law. However, as a good faith gesture and without any waiver or admission of any kind, we will cease use of Starbucks name in our distribution of this promotion.

If Starbucks would like to grant us a license in order to obtain possible acknowledgement of Starbucks rights and to police and control alleged uses of Starbucks marks by us in the future, we would welcome such a discussion.

Please feel free to contact me at (561) 939-6918 or jsilver@adinfocenter.com if you have further questions or concerns.

Very truly yours,

Judith A. Silver, Esq.

Re: Starbucks Coffee Company

Dear Sir or Madam:

This firm represents Starbucks Corporation d/b/a Starbucks Coffee Company and its subsidiaries (collectively, "Starbucks"). It has come to Starbucks' attention that Exclusive Gift Cards distributes "spam" email advertisements advertising an Internet promotion offering "FREE $250 in Starbucks Cards." Your emails and Internet promotion improperly use Starbucks' trademarks in a manner creating a false impression that Starbucks approves or is in some way connected to your business activities. The purpose of this letter is to demand that you discontinue these actions, which violate Starbucks' trademark and related rights, and confirm that you will not make similar unconsented use of Starbucks' intellectual property in the future.

Starbucks is the registered owner of trademarks in the names STARBUCKS®, STARBUCKS COFFEE® and a number of related terms (collectively, the "Starbucks Marks"). Starbucks has used its trademarks for more than thirty years as the principal identifiers of its business and the products it sells. Through the substantial effort and investment of Starbucks' employees and shareholders, consumers have come to associate the Starbucks Marks with premium quality in both products and services.

Starbucks has learned that Exclusive Gift Cards is sending to consumers unsolicited "spam" emails with links to a promotion involving "free" Starbucks Cards on Exclusive Gift Cards' Web site at the URL <<http://www.exclusivegiftcards.com>>. The subject lines of some of the email solicitations contain the word "Starbucks," even though Starbucks has nothing to do with the ads (e.g., "Starbucks Drinkers: Read This Now!" and "A Free Starbucks Gift Card"). Moreover, Exclusive Gift Cards' offer is false and extremely misleading. Though the emails and Website promotion state that the offered card is "FREE," it is actually conditioned on the provision of personal information, the completion of a lengthy "survey" consisting of repeated solicitations for the sale of goods and services unrelated to Starbucks, and the participation in at least 6 "offers" that, in fact, are not "free."

The foregoing demeans and dilutes the goodwill that Starbucks has developed in its trademark by creating the false impression that Starbucks is the sender of junk email and/or that Starbucks has some affiliation with Exclusive Gift Cards and its misleading Internet promotion.<sup>1</sup> Your actions are particularly harmful to Starbucks because consumers are likely to form the mistaken impression that Starbucks is to blame for misleading them.

In light of the seriousness of this matter, Starbucks has instructed us to inform you that Exclusive Gift Cards must:

- Confirm that it has terminated the distribution of these spam emails;
- Provide us with data from which Starbucks can determine how many such emails were distributed, the email addresses to which they were sent, the identity of all consumers who lodged complaints or expressed confusion as a result of the ads, and the amount of revenue and profit generated by this promotion;
- Identify any other entities sending the spam emails involved in this promotion so that Starbucks can contact them directly; and
- Terminate its Internet promotion and confirm that Exclusive Gift Cards will make no further misuse of Starbucks' name or marks.

Starbucks always prefers to resolve this type of issue without resort to litigation. We therefore request that you provide written compliance with all of the demands set forth above within ten (10) days of the date of this letter.

Should you have any questions regarding Starbucks' position in this matter, please contact me directly. Pending further agreement between Starbucks and Exclusive Gift Cards,

<sup>1</sup> Starbucks has taken pains to ensure that its Starbucks Cards do not become associated with third-party promotions directed to the general public. If you wish to know Starbucks' policies with respect to the distribution of Starbucks Cards, you may call (800) 611-1699, send an email to b2bgroup@starbucks.com, or visit the web page starbucks.com/businessgifts.

Mr. Rawls,

I am in receipt of your February 14, 2006 letter.

As per my prior email , I am again requesting full and complete emails as you allege that we have sent. Your letter merely attaches 2 blank pages.

I need the full, non-redacted, online version so that I can click and review the links, examine the header and footer, etc. to discover who the sender is and respond to your allegations. I cannot respond to any of your email allegations without this information.

As far as I am aware the YourSmartRewards promotion was discontinued as I stated.

Both YourSmartRewards and ExclusiveGiftCards are fictitious names we use for different website promotional channels.

None of this is fraudulent as we do in fact give away your cards without charge to our users. I will get a count of the cards given away thus far and get back to you with that information after I review the emails and prepare a formal reply.

Please confirm receipt.

Thank you.
